

Source: <https://www.eurekalert.org/multimedia/1059967>

At the right are three of Mondrian's paintings from 1912 – 1913. They are all of the same apple tree. You can see some of his journey towards abstraction here, and notice how Rothenberg borrows from his style of brush strokes and colour to create form, movement, and a playful mood.